

Beaded edge charger by Thomas Goodwin, c1710-16.

This charger is probably unique in two respects: firstly it was made by Thomas Goodwin of London and I am not aware of any other surviving pieces by him, he was Free in 1707, only opened shop in 1710 and probably retired or died in 1716 thus he worked for a very short period. Secondly it is decorated with a beaded edge; again I have not seen another charger with this style of decoration. This 20.5" charger is in absolutely superb condition having been kept in this state since manufacture.
